—I was darn sure I wanted to try it myself.

From where I sit, any "improvement plan" will grow if one man demonstrates its advantages to his neighbors. Like the Self-Regulation Program sponsored by the Brewing Industry. Under this voluntary program, retailers selling beer co-operate by keeping their places of business clean, bright, and orderly. One retailer sees how the Program helps the others—then he's quick to join up.

U.S. Highway 301— "All-Weather Route"

THE BOYS on U. S. 17 are getting on the ball. They have raised over $60,000 to publicize U. S. Highway 17, by way of Savannah.

Now, the tourists using U. S. 17 have learned a lesson. During the recent storm, U. S. 17 was a little rough, to put it mildly.

Our route, U. S. 301, can be called the "All-Weather Route." Tourists should be made aware of this.

And it takes money to tell them the facts. Our U. S. 301 Association has been active and has done a good job in taking care of Statesboro in its publicity, and if it is to continue doing a good job it must be supported.

THE BAND STAND

By ANN EVANS

The Statesboro High School Band has received recognition in the Lyons Band News and Kjos Music News, which is published at Chicago, Ill. The following is quoted from that paper:

"The Statesboro High School Band of Statesboro, Georgia, left the State Contests at Milledgeville on a cloud—having captured a first division rating in concert, marching and sight reading. The band is under the able supervision of Guyton S. McLondon, an energetic and inquisitive individual, who is ever on the search for new and better ways for improving the quality of his charges."

"Mr. McLondon had similar successes in his previous positions at Waycross and Blakely, Georgia, but the program at Statesboro is of such magnitude as to bring unstinted, complimentary remarks from competitive handmasters over the entire state. In his overall planning he has constantly used the Lyons Recruiting plan with splendid results, and the last time the new season was personally recruited for him by our new Georgia representative, Mr. Walter G. Strait, who again will be on the spot this year to give handmasters in Georgia a hand with their recruiting."

"Mac's program stems from fourth grade up, and includes his three children, Guyton Jr., who plays a mighty fine bass; Felicia on the flute, and Roger, who, besides handling the rhythm section, does a first class job in the fried shrimp department."

"The instrumental program has been 'solid solid' to the students and parents of Statesboro, and as a result the enthusiasm for band continues throughout the year at fever pitch. We wish Guyton continued success in keeping his band on top."

Vaccinating against diseases was also a must on Dr. Dooley's recommendation. Hogs should be vaccinated when young to avoid serious trouble from weak hogs where they get affected with worms. The specialist thought it best to vaccinate hogs from six to eight weeks of age, which would give protection all their life, be cheaper, and easier to handle. Then, too, worms do not bother hogs until they get about three or four months old. Quite often virus is put into what looks to be a healthy hog when, as a matter of fact, the hog is in a weakened condition due to worms, and a break from the virus occurs.

Mr. Dooley predicted hog farmers would use more vaccine in the future for hog cholera, which gives approximately 12 months protection against the disease.

Many hogs in this section die from causes other than cholera, according to Mr. Dooley. Necrotic enteritis kills lots of pigs under six months old. It may attack er hogs. The outstanding lesion in this disease is an inflammation of the intestine which leads to development of areas of necrotic or dead tissue in the lining of the intestine. Necrotic enteritis is frequently a complication of hog cholera along with many other troubles, all of which are secondary to nutritional deficiency.

Mr. Dooley recommended that hogs with necrotic enteritis be isolated from hogs not sick, and given an injection of sulfa solution and anti-hog cholera serum. Take them off feed for one day and give each hog two ounces of epsom salts. The second day, add one-quarter pound of alkaline powder to 100 pounds of whole oats, soak in 15 to 20 gallons of water for about 12 hours. Add to this mixture two pounds of a vitamin known as nicotinic acid. It is the deficiency of this vitamin which causes enteritis.

James Young, field man for McKesson and Robbins, accompanied the Globe Laboratories specialist here and assisted him with motion pictures shown at the meetings. Sidney Lanier, of the City Drug Co., procured these men for this series of meetings.

R. P. Mikell, county Farm Bureau president, met with each of these groups and outlined methods of procuring group hospitalization and renewing subscriptions to local papers through the Farm Bureau, at considerable savings to the members. Mr. Mikell cited several reasons why the Farm Bureau should be stronger in Bulloch county this year than ever before.

Brooklet served a roast pork supper Monday night. Their meeting was changed from the regular time so that Mr. Dooley could be with them.

West Side served a barbecue supper Tuesday night and has as part of their program a lighting demonstration by Levin Burnside, Novice 4-H Club girl, and a picture on Southern possibilities made by the Georgia Power Company.

Sutton served a barbecue supper on Wednesday night.

The Portal group went in for something new, serving a barbecued semi-cured ham supper.

Community Center this year. Mothers interested in letting their children participate in the program are urged to bring them to the center Saturday morning for registration.

The group will meet from 9 a. m. to 12 noon on Saturdays. Children between the ages of three and six will be enrolled. The nursery program is part of the recreation program and is free to the mothers of these children.

An early patriot editor carried legal government notices in his newspaper free of charge, refusing to accept payment until finally George Washington thanked him for his generosity and insisted that he accept pay.

Mr. Dooley urged livestock farmers to make a stronger effort to keep their livestock free of internal and external parasites.

Phenothiazine was the drug recommended for internal parasites.

Vaccinating against diseases was also a must on Dr. Dooley's recommendation. Hogs should be vaccinated when young to avoid serious trouble from weak hogs where they get affected with worms. The specialist thought it best to vaccinate hogs from six to eight weeks of age, which would give protection all their life, be cheaper, and easier to handle. Then, too, worms do not bother hogs until they get about three or four months old. Quite often virus is put into what looks to be a healthy hog when, as a matter of fact, the hog is in a weakened condition due to worms, and a break from the virus occurs.
